

Amie Roberts

Amie is originally from the Los Angeles area. She attended college and lived and worked in Utah for almost 20 years before moving to Washington State in 2011. Amie started her career working with victims of domestic violence and sexual assault. She has had many jobs in the victim services field. She travels often... even though she seriously dislikes flying. Amie lived in Spain for a short time, has immediate family that lives in Europe (hence the dreadful flying), and she speaks Spanish fluently.

Amie earned her BA in Spanish Literature, her MA in Counseling and is a Certified Public Manager. She is a licensed mental health counselor with experience working in substance use, mental health and domestic violence offender treatment. Amie created a DV offender program from the ground up while working in Utah. This is where she discovered a passion for domestic violence intervention treatment.

Amie worked for over 4 years as a Mental Health Program Administrator with the review team at the Division of Behavioral Health and Recovery in WA State prior to her current position. Amie is currently working at DSHS as the Domestic Violence Perpetrator Treatment Program Manager. She spearheaded the effort to revise the Washington Administrative Code for DV treatment providers, met with victim services programs throughout the state and has conducted investigations and reviews of DV treatment programs. She has presented at multiple conferences and participated in the House Bill 1163 workgroup.

Her motto is: “We are changing the world!”
